

LOOK AT THESE FIGURES.

In 1865 a sack of flour brought $5.00. It weighed 120 pounds.

In 1870 288 pounds realized $5.00. In 1875 300 pounds, in 1880 330 pounds, in 1885 390 pounds in 1890 300 pounds and in 1894, 600 pounds of flour brought but $5.00 in New York. No wonder the Western farmers are all starving to death.

But the wheat raiser has not been alone in his miser. In 1865 a bale of cotton brought $416. It weighed 400 pounds. It took 1750 pounds to do his in 1870, 2750 in 1875 and so on down the years until it took 5667 lbs. to realize to the cotton planter the same money that 500 pounds brought him in 1865. Everything else has gone down with the depreciation of silver. In a few years the people will find themselves very much in the fix of the man who could have purchased the site of Chicago for a pair of boots, but unfortunately didn't have the boots.

BOOKS FOR THE PUBLIC.

The Governor in his message recommends that the State Library be thrown open to the public as is done in nearly every other State. Under the present system only persons who are intimately acquainted with State officers ever think of asking for a permit.

There is a vast amount of mental food in the State Library and there is no reason why the general public should not have the benefit of it. The Library is now so large, that an assistant is needed to enable the Library to remain open in the evening and by the charge of nominal monthly dues to those taking advantage of the benefits of the proposed change, a sufficient sum would accrue to relieve the State of the extra expense.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Governor Colcord in his message points out the fact that women almost have the right to vote, that in 1869 the Nevada Legislature passed a resolution amending the Constitution by striking out the word "male," which was, in effect, the enfranchisement of women. The vote in the Assembly stood twenty-six for, and thirteen against; in the Senate the action taken was recorded in its journal as, "Adopted."

The Constitution was probably not changed because some little technicality knocked it out later on. The new Constitution of this State will undoubtedly give the ladies of Nevada the right to vote.

The advocates for one cent postage for letters have not been in the past discouraged by the deficit shown in the postmaster general's report, but propose to urge the question upon Congress this winter, and hope to obtain their desire by securing a reform in postal rates that will, in their judgment, not only allow a one cent letter postage, but decrease the annual deficit even if it does not wipe it out altogether. The plan is based upon the fact that the letter postage now pays a considerable revenue above expenses and the deficit is caused in the carrying of second class matter.

Mrs. Benjamin Helm was recently removed as Postmaster of Elizabethtown, Kentucky. Mrs. Helm was a sister-in-law of Abraham Lincoln. She has held her position since the war by reason of her relationship to the most illustrious man of his day and generation, and succeeding Administrations paid his name the tribute of leaving Mrs. Helm in her little Kentucky postoffice. But the Cleveland Administration had no respect for the memory of a man who was as great as the present President is little.

The San Francisco Examiner and Chronicle reached here yesterday, but no letters got through from California. This would seem to indicate that the United States Postal Service is not as enterprising as the newspapers. When newspapers can go the United States Government should certainly be able to make its way.

The News makes more astonishing discoveries than any paper published in Nevada. It thinks it has detected signs that the Silver State is weakening in its devotion to the white metal.

What the next sensational find of that extraordinary publication will be "the stars alone can tell."

The East can no longer shake its locks at the woolly West. Delaware has just elected a Governor, who can neither read or write. He is a Republican.

Since the change of administration some of our Republican contemporaries seem to have been hit with an aggravated attack of mumps.
